

Abstract

In some embodiments of the invention, methods are provided to profile transcriptionally active sites of the genome. The methods employ hybridization of a large number of oligonucleotide probes to nucleic acid derivatives of cytosolic RNAs derived from 5 cell lines that respond to an exogenous stimulation.